HISTORICAL NOTE

Archivists at the Ford Motor Company Archives accessioned research papers offered from authors who utilized the collections. Papers came from a variety of sources, including students, graduate students, and people writing family reminiscences. Researchers should note that these are primarily academic and personal research papers and that none were company sponsored research. Reliability, quality, and length varies greatly.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Collected research papers subgroup is a set of research papers that cover a wide range of subjects and came to the archives from a variety of authors. These are usually single papers with little or no accompanying background or research materials. The subgroup includes 11 accessions, most consisting of a single research paper. Topics include the Ford Motor Company Highland Park Plant, the Vagabonds (Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Harvey Firestone, and John Burroughs), African-American employment in Detroit area Ford Motor Company plants, the agricultural depression of 1920-1923, William B. Mayo and the Airplane Division of the Ford Motor Company, the Liberty Engine, Ford Motor Company timber operations in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, Henry and Clara Ford's Fair Lane estate, Acc. 1129 and 1164; Henry Ford's pacifism, educational programs developed by Henry Ford, art education at Henry Ford Hospital, and Clara Bryant Ford.
