HISTORICAL NOTE

The relocation of the archives from the Ford Engineering Laboratory to the Fair Lane home of Henry and Clara Ford was timed to coincide with the fiftieth anniversary of the company. One of the earliest corporate archives in the country, the public launching of the archives and the papers held there was said to have garnered more publicity than any other anniversary event. Ford Motor Company archivists were frequently very involved in company special events including planning, preparing publications, and documenting activities. Archives staff, for example, coordinated all activities of the 1963 Ford Centennial, working with numerous internal and external organizations. Logistics and planning for the 1959 re-enactment of the 1909 New York to Seattle Transcontinental Endurance Race included securing an appropriate Model T, ordering press packets for the event, and contacting newspapers along the route for available information on the original race.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Activities subgroup is organized into two series. The Special events series includes material collected or created to celebrate milestones in Ford Motor Company history. There are three subseries. The Fiftieth Anniversary Tributes subseries includes plaques, trophies, and sound recorded and printed tributes to the company.
